Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 18 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Some areas staying fine on Saturday but scattered showers.

Today:
Fog patches lifting by mid-morning, then fine across northwestern UK, as well parts of the south, where some warm sunshine is expected. In between, a band of patchy rain, while odd heavy showers may develop across southwestern regions.

Tonight:
Rain probably becoming more widespread and heavier for some western and northern areas. Either side of this, mostly dry although with a few fog patches possible in clearer areas.

Sunday:
Bands of cloud and patchy rain edging east, with heavy, perhaps thundery, downpours likely across parts of eastern England later. Further west it should gradually turn drier and brighter.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Showers in the east and far northwest on Monday, otherwise largely fine early next week with sunny spells. Turning unsettled from the northwest later on Tuesday and into Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.